

SOU'WESTER HELD KILAUEA STORM BOUND

The Inter-island steamer Kilauea, with more than 100 passengers and a large Christmas mail, was held prisoner at exposed ports along the coast of Hawaii and Maui because of a strong sou'wester which has paid its respects to the islands during the past 24 hours.

As a result coastal steamship schedules were much upset, while numerous telephone calls directed to the Inter-island general office and to the wharves kept the officials busy explaining the delay of the Hilo liner, which heretofore has always been an early arrival at the port.

Choppy seas met at many ports of call after leaving Hilo as held accountable for the appearance of the steamer at its wharf shortly before 11 o'clock this morning. Wind and head seas encountered in the channel and the difficulty in management of small boats in the transfer of passengers, mails and freight at island ports caused officers in the Kilauea much concern.

The Kilauea will be returned to the stream, the Mauna Kea to be dispatched for Hilo and way points at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Purser Phillips reported a large incoming freight, including 1000 railway ties, big shipments of poultry, vegetables and fruits. The vessel also brought parts of plantation machinery for repairs.

Entertaining Christmas programs were carried out in the various class rooms in the Kapiolani school yesterday which marked the closing of the school for the holidays. The exercises were carried out under the direction of Principal Charles W. Baldwin. A feature of the program being the distribution of gifts by Santa Claus to 208 children.

In sympathy with the plan of most of the large business firms of the city practically all departments of the territorial government will enjoy a three-day holiday in conjunction with the Christmas celebration. The governor will leave his office Thursday afternoon and not return until Monday morning following Christmas. Department heads who have mail business to attend may do some work Saturday morning, but their offices likely will not be open for public affairs.

BARGAINS IN GASOLINE BUGGIES OFFERED BY SANTA SCHWARZBERG

Santa Claus was doing business at a new stand today. Perched on the seat of a motor car, instead of his old-time sleigh and snapping his conventional whip over cylinders instead of reindeer, Santa held forth in Bishop Park, presenting automobiles to sundry members of a large crowd that gathered round him.

The present giving occasion was the auction sale of automobiles by the Hawaiian Young Co., 40 gas buggies, of various sizes, shapes and vintage, being offered to the public. Bidding on the whole was light and the interest didn't measure up to those aroused at the sale earlier in the year. In fact, a lot of the cars knocked down were bargains, and anyone with $250 in his pocket, and some knowledge of the game, could secure a pretty fair sort of automobile.

Cadillacs, E. M. F. touring cars, and other medium priced cars of '10, '11 and '12 models, were knocked down at from $250 to $350. Most of these cars had been thoroughly overhauled and re-painted, the tires being in good condition, and the tops either new or completely renovated.

What made it even better for the investor was that for cars under $500 one-third of the purchase price could be paid on time, while in cars of over $500 sale price only half of the bid had to be cash.

E. L. Schwarzbarg put the cars up and knocked 'em down.

Barkentine Puako Off for the Coast.

NEW GAME THE INVENTION OF A HONOLULUAN

"Hawaiian Surf-Rider" is the name of a new game that already is jumping into popularity. It is the invention of a Honolulu man, C. G. Owen, and comes at a very appropriate time for a Christmas gift. The game is a harmless form of dice-throwing combined with a plan to stimulate keen competition in securing the object of the contest, which is for each player to get his "surf-rider" to Honolulu from the islands of Kauai, Molokai, Maui or Kauai.

As the dice fall, so do the miniature surf-riders advance along the line from their respective islands to their goal at Oahu. The rules of the game, which accompany each set, are very simple and can be learned in a minute, but the possibilities for fun and excitement are numberless as setbacks are always likely no matter how far one contestant is ahead. Mr. Owen is handling the game, the printing and engraving for which have been done by the Star-Bulletin.
